NVIDIA Corp (NVDA.O)

Preview – Investors Looking Past Earnings to GTC 2026

CITI'S TAKE

NVIDIA reports Jan-Q earnings on 2/25. We model Jan-Q sales of $67B above Street $65.6B and expect Apr-Q guide of $73B vs Street $71.6B. We expect continued strong ramp of B300 with Rubin launch to drive a 34% H/H acceleration in CY2H26 sales vs 27% in CY1H26. We believe most investors are looking past the earnings to annual GTC conference in mid-March for NVIDIA to talk about inference roadmap using Groq's low latency SRAM IP and provide an early outlook for 2026/27 AI sales. We expect FY27 GM outlook of ~75% and assume high-30% opex growth or same as FY26. We recommend investors add to NVDA as valuation looks attractive with the stock likely to outperform in 2H26 as demand visibility extends into 2027. We lift our FY25/26/27E EPS ~1% and maintain our target price of $270 on consistent P/E of 30x CY27E EPS. Maintain Buy.

Key Investor Topics — a) Higher component costs impact to expected mid 70s gross margins; b) updates on Anthropic/OpenAI investments; c) inference competition, and d) impact of the Groq licensing agreement on NVIDIA's product roadmap.

Market Concerns on AI Froth — While rising capex levels among U.S. hyperscalers continue to raise concerns among investors, Citi believes these investments will deliver long-term returns as these investments reaccelerate industry revenue and earnings growth, economies of scale, and platform stickiness. Aggregate U.S. hyperscaler cloud revenues accelerated 5pts QoQ and reached $81.7B in Q4, after +2pts in Q3 with the incremental YoY $ growth coming from the continued demand for AI infrastructure and solutions, particularly inference.

Increased Competition on Inference is Natural — We expect the inference market to be more diversified in nature, leaving room for more optionality in model size and specificity in 2026. Therefore, by nature we expect room for a variety in AI accelerator usage. That said, at a system level, we expect NVIDIA to continue to be the leader across both training and reasoning focused inference workloads, and rely on MLPerf as the best apples-to-apples comparison metric for AI accelerators.

Maintain ~75% GM in 2026 despite memory price increases — We model NVIDIA to maintain ~75% gross margins on supply chain scale and ability to pass along higher costs to customers given the strong demand for its products.

Jan-Q Earnings Preview

1. Earnings preview

We revise up our Jan-Q estimates from prior $65B following stronger-than-expected demand for Blackwell showcased by optical networking companies' aggregate AI sales outperformance over the Jun/Dec-2025 timeframe (see Figure 2). We model ~$1.5B upside in Jan-Q with sales reaching $67.1B vs. Street's $65.6B. Going into Apr-Q, we expect a 9% QoQ sales uptick to $73B (Street $71.6B). We expect a continued strong ramp of B300 as foreshadowed by the faster-than-expected ramp of 1.6T transceivers. We model data center sales in Jan-Q/Apr-Q to grow sequentially +20%/+10% QoQ vs. Street +17%/+10%. We expect NVIDIA to hold Apr-Q GM% of ~75%, OpEx to increase to ~$5.3B or +8% Q/Q assuming high 30% OpEx growth in FY27 or same as FY26.

Investor focus is on: a) higher component costs impact on expected mid 70s gross margins; b) details on Anthropic/OpenAI investments; c) increasing competition on inference; and d) impact of the Groq licensing agreement on NVIDIA's product roadmap.

2. Market concerns on AI froth

While rising capex levels among U.S. hyperscalers continue to raise concerns among investors, Citi believes these investments will deliver long-term returns as these investments reaccelerate industry revenue and earnings growth, economies of scale, and platform stickiness. Enterprise adoption is accelerating as AI use-cases in production grew by 3pts to 24% in 4Q25, according to Citi's latest CIO survey, and we generally observe efficiency gains of 20-30% based on available customer studies. See Citi's AI framework and links to recent reports below:

Global Artificial Intelligence - The ROI on AI: Accelerating Enterprise Adoption Driving Hyperscaler Returns

Artificial Intelligence - ROI on AI: Growth Acceleration & Returns Drive Capex Revisions

The outlook for Big Five cloud data center capex remains strong with Citi FY26 expectations for three of the five revised higher. We note current Citi analysts' projections point to aggregate data center capex growth of > 60% Y/Y in 2026 and high-teens growth in 2027. Higher 2026 estimates YTD mostly reflect higher memory costs since DRAM component pricing is up >2x from Dec-Q last year and likely some pull-forward of spend given supply shortages, at least in part, in our view.

Moreover, investor concerns around the mix of debt and circular financing around AI capex persist; fundamentally we see AI supply below demand due to memory/CoWoS constraints through 2026, and likely 2027 as well, as the continued pivot toward inference. The latter point is further accentuated by aggregate hyperscaler cloud revenues accelerating 5pts QoQ and reaching $81.7B in Q4, after +2pts in Q3, with the incremental YoY $ growth coming from the continued demand for AI infrastructure and solutions (see note from Citi Software team). This, coupled with major hyperscalers showing no signs of slowing cloud capex, give us confidence in NVIDIA's continued robust data center growth. Amid the Rubin launch in CY2H26, we expect H/H DC sales acceleration to 34% vs the 27% H/H growth in CY1H26.

We continue to expect strong GPU units' growth in FY26/FY27. We model NVIDIA GPU units reaching 7.1M (+27% Y/Y) and 10.2M units (+44% Y/Y) in FY26 and FY27, respectively, with notably units of Blackwell representing 6.2M in FY2026. Backed by units' upticks and favorable product mix, we estimate FY26/FY27 sales reaching ~$160B (+55%)/$269B (+68%). We expect sales of AI GPUs to represent on average high 80% to 90% of total NVIDIA data center sales in FY26-FY27, with the remaining being comprised primarily of networking (Ethernet and InfiniBand), standalone CPUs, and software/services offerings.

3. Increased competition on inference is natural

On February 12, Open AI announced the availability for preview of its new GPT-5.3-Codex-Spark model, enabling over 1,000 tokens/s for ultra-fast inference. We estimate this news to be in-line with our expectations around a diversification of the AI accelerators in outer years as more inference workloads are deployed. We expect the inference market to be more diversified in nature, leaving room for more optionality in model size and specificity. Therefore, by nature we expect room for a variety in AI accelerator usage driving our assumption of NVIDIA $ share of merchant GPUs to 85% in CY26 from 94% in CY25 and merchant GPUs going to 55% from 65% of total AI accelerator units in the same period. That said, at a system level, we expect NVIDIA to continue to be the leader across both training and reasoning focused inference workloads. We continue to rely on MLPerf as the best apples-to-apples comparison metric for AI accelerators. On its last published version in November, GB300 NVL72 delivered the highest throughput on all inference tests, demonstrating technology leadership beyond the chip level. While we believe these impressive results do include enhanced software such as NVIDIA TensorRT-LLM (an open-source software library developed to optimize inference), we find the latest results to be better indicators of NVIDIA's chips and server dominance than before as increasingly we see other accelerators such as GOOGL's (covered by Ron Josey) TPU participate in more tests. Amid these results, we see further evidence of NVIDIA's TCO leadership, which will continue to be key to the strong Blackwell ramp.

4. Maintain 75% GM% despite memory pricing increases

In a scenario in which NVIDIA faces ~30% memory price hike in Jan-Q, the company can see up to 100bps+ potential impact on its GM%, per our analysis. That said, we estimate this scenario to be unlikely given the company's: 1) key partnerships with the memory makers who by all indications would prioritize NVIDIA given its level of orders and strategic positioning; 2) view memory pricing increases already baked in given long-lead times which allows it to (for the most part) see kinks in the supply chain ahead of time; 3) NVIDIA's ability to pass along higher costs to customers given the strong demand of its products led notably by Blackwell; and 4) higher mix of DC sales driven notably by Blackwell, which is accretive to its margins.

5. CES Recap & Meeting Notes

We attended NVIDIA CEO keynote/financial analyst Q&A and hosted CFO Colette Kress for an investor meeting at CES in January. Overall, we walked away positive on reasoning led agentic and physical AI demand inflection in 2026. We were surprised to see Vera Rubin details at CES and believe Rubin architecture will enhance/surpass NVIDIA's AI platform appeal vs Blackwell given increased architectural complexity with six new chips. The company sees upside to prior $500B AI 2025/26 AI demand from both Blackwell and Rubin. See our detailed note and management notes: NVIDIA Corp (NVDA.O) - CES Meeting Takeaways – Maintain Buy

Supply chain: Management is very confident about its supply chain relationships, both up and down stream. The company is growing at fast scale and rate, and it prepares partners very early and supports them with prepays to build out their capacity.

Vera Rubin: Management clarified that Vera Rubin is in full production now and is still planning on 2H 2026 to be released to the market. Cycle time is about 9 months+. The ramp is expected to be very fast. It's the only computer in the history where every chip is new. Management is confident about maintaining GM in the guided range even with Rubin ramp, and in the longer term it links directly with the value NVIDIA delivers.

Groq acquisition: Groq is very good at extreme latency and NVIDIA's strength is very high throughput. While latency and throughput are opposite to each other, the company is looking for a place to create something unique in the future. Management added that the acquisition will not affect core business but rather open something new. On the topic of M&A more broadly, the company's investment strategy (including R&D) is in every layer of the stack and across the industries, and up and down the supply chain. If there is something the company could do very uniquely, it will do it internally, and for investment outside, management prefers to keep NVIDIA as small as possible and as large as necessary.

Anthropic partnership: NVIDIA did not have the resources to invest in Anthropic in the early stage. Anthropic generates very high-quality tokens for enterprise, but generation rate is long, and that is where NVIDIA can be helpful. After Anthropic partnership, NVIDIA is now the only platform in the world that runs every model.

China: The company has plenty of supply for all customers in all countries, particularly in the US, so that supply specific for China will not take away anything from other countries. Regarding H200, the government has received licenses, and they are working on how to process those different licenses. From the company's perspective, they do have demand and just need to make sure to get approvals across different governments.

Frontier model market and the future growth vectors of AI: Current models are probably good enough for general use, but not from a domain-specific perspective, and NVIDIA management expects to see many breakthroughs this year in vertical agentic systems. Each model maker will have to find a specific channel that they can secure, and everything else will be open models. Reasoning is likely the reason that drives 5x growth of token generation, but management expects 50x ahead because of agentic systems with tool use, planning and simulation, together with reasoning.

Context memory storage platform: NVIDIA is the largest networking company currently and management expects to be the largest storage processor company as well. NVIDIA's BlueField with DOCA software is already adopted in CPU and networking, but the storage market is underserved right now. KV cache in AI data center is very heavyweight and cannot be supported by the old storage system, and BlueField-4 can open a new market.

Investment strategy

We like Buy-rated NVDA on secular AI growth opportunities.

Valuation

Our price target for NVDA of $270 is based on ~30x P/E on C27E earnings power of $10 discounted back. Our 30x P/E multiple is in-line with 3-5 year average.

Risks

Downside risks to the attainment of our target price include: 1) competition on gaming could drive the stock lower if Nvidia loses market share; 2) slower-than-expected adoption of new platforms can drive lower data center and gaming sales; 3) lumpiness in auto and data center markets can add volatility to the stock/multiple; and 4) cryptomining impact on gaming sales.

Analysts' compensation is determined by Citi Research management and Citigroup's senior management and is based upon activities and services intended to benefit the investor clients of Citigroup Global Markets Inc. and its affiliates (the "Firm"). Compensation is not linked to specific transactions or recommendations. Like all Firm employees, analysts receive compensation that is impacted by overall Firm profitability which includes investment banking, sales and trading, and principal trading revenues. One factor in equity research analyst compensation is arranging corporate access events between institutional clients and the management teams of covered companies. Typically, company management is more likely to participate when the analyst has a positive view of the company.

For financial instruments recommended in the Product in which the Firm is not a market maker, the Firm is a liquidity provider in such financial instruments (and any underlying instruments) and may act as principal in connection with transactions in such instruments. The Firm is a regular issuer of traded financial instruments linked to securities that may have been recommended in the Product. The Firm regularly trades in the securities of the issuer(s) discussed in the Product. The Firm may engage in securities transactions in a manner inconsistent with the Product and, with respect to securities covered by the Product, will buy or sell from customers on a principal basis.

Unless stated otherwise neither the Research Analyst nor any member of their team has viewed the material operations of the Companies for which an investment view has been provided within the past 12 months.

Guide to Citi Research Fundamental Research Investment Ratings:

Citi Research stock recommendations include an investment rating and an optional risk rating to highlight high risk stocks.

Risk rating takes into account both price volatility and fundamental criteria. Stocks will either have no risk rating or a High risk rating assigned.

Investment Ratings: Citi Research investment ratings are Buy, Neutral and Sell. Our ratings are a function of analyst expectations of expected total return ("ETR") and risk. ETR is the sum of the forecast price appreciation (or depreciation) plus the dividend yield for a stock within the next 12 months. The target price is based on a 12 month time horizon. The Investment rating definitions are: Buy (1) ETR of 15% or more or 25% or more for High risk stocks; and Sell (3) for negative ETR. Any covered stock not assigned a Buy or a Sell is a Neutral (2). For stocks rated Neutral (2), if an analyst believes that there are insufficient valuation drivers and/or investment catalysts to derive a positive or negative investment view, they may elect with the approval of Citi Research management not to assign a target price and, thus, not derive an ETR. Citi Research may suspend its rating and target price and assign "Rating Suspended" status for regulatory and/or internal policy reasons. Citi Research may also suspend its rating and target price and assign "Under Review" status for other exceptional circumstances (e.g. lack of information critical to the analyst's thesis, trading suspension) affecting the company and/or trading in the company's securities. In both such situations, the rating and target price will show as "—" and "-" respectively in the rating history price chart. Prior to 11 April 2022 Citi Research assigned "Under Review" status to both situations and prior to 11 Nov 2020 only in exceptional circumstances. As soon as practically possible, the analyst will publish a note re-establishing a rating and investment thesis. Investment ratings are determined by the ranges described above at the time of initiation of coverage, a change in investment and/or risk rating, or a change in target price (subject to limited management discretion). At times, the expected total returns may fall outside of these ranges because of market price movements and/or other short-term volatility or trading patterns. Such interim deviations will be permitted but will become subject to review by Research Management. Your decision to buy or sell a security should be based upon your personal investment objectives and should be made only after evaluating the stock's expected performance and risk.

Catalyst Watch/Short Term Views ("STV") Ratings Disclosure:
Catalyst Watch and STV Upside/Downside calls: Citi Research may also include a Catalyst Watch or STV Upside or Downside call to indicate the analyst expects the share price to rise (fall) in absolute terms over a specified period of 30 or 90 days in reaction to one or more specific near-term catalysts or events impacting the company or the market. A Catalyst Watch will be published when Analyst confidence is high that an impact to share price will occur; it will be a STV when confidence level is moderate. A Catalyst Watch or STV Upside/Downside call will automatically expire at the end of the specified 30/90 day period. The Catalyst Watch will also be automatically removed if share price performance (calculated at market close) exceeds 15% against the direction of the call (unless over-ridden by the analyst). The analyst may also remove a Catalyst Watch or STV call prior to the end of the specified period in a published research note. A Catalyst Watch/STV Upside or Downside call may be different from and does not affect a stock's fundamental equity rating, which reflects a longer-term total absolute return expectation. For purposes of FINRA ratings-distribution-disclosure rules, a Catalyst Watch/STV Upside call corresponds to a buy recommendation and a Catalyst Watch/STV Downside call corresponds to a sell recommendation. Any stock not assigned to a Catalyst Watch Upside, Catalyst Watch Downside, STV Upside, or STV Downside call is considered Catalyst Watch/STV No View. For purposes of FINRA ratings distribution-disclosure rules, we correspond Catalyst Watch/STV No View to Hold in our ratings distribution table for our Catalyst Watch/STV Upside/Downside rating system. However, we reiterate that we do not consider No View to be a recommendation. For all Catalyst Watch/STV Upside/Downside calls, risk exists that the catalyst(s) and associated share-price movement will not materialize as expected.
